GRANT WRITING, RESEARCH AND PROGRAM EVALUATION EXPERIENCE

In 1979 and 1980, I was engaged in two team projects as a doctoral student. An evaluation of Social Work doctoral dissertation research resulted in a publication and a presentation at a national conference. The second, was a study of immigrants in New York City and resulted in a published monologue.

During 1980 and 1981, I worked with the late Dr. Melvin Herman who was with the Columbia University Community Services, studying the impact of declining single room occupancy hotels (SROs). I helped develop and conducted the statistical analysis on two survey questionnaires related to attitudes of Medical, Law, Public Health, and Social Work students working with SRO residents.

In 1982 and 1983, I also led two surveys of college alcohol use and one program evaluation of a county's distribution of food stamps which resulted in two publications and one international conference presentation.

My dissertation (completed in 1986) was an enormous quantitative research piece beginning with the questionnaire development and using extensive multivariate analyses to test psychosocial variables involved in college alcohol and drug use. Two papers on the findings have been published in professional journals.

In 1987, I conducted a study among the elderly regarding longevity and health behaviors for a Scranton, PA Medical Hospital. In 1988, I conducted a study of the scientific orientation of graduate MSW social workers and I presented my findings in March 1988 at the Conference of Social Work Education.

As well in 1988, I conducted a study of the attitudes of Catholics toward capital punishment. The results were published in a number of newspapers including the national newspaper The Catholic Light. Additionally, the United States Catholic Conference: Department of Social Development and Work Peace used the report to help plan a major education effort.

From 1988 through 1990, I wrote a proposal and developed a pilot program to reunite parents with their children. The program provided supervised visits between foster children and their parents.

In 1989, I was involved in a national evaluation of the affect of licensure on MSW Education. The results were presented at the March 1988 Conference of Social Work Education. A paper on the study has been published in a professional journal.

Beginning in 1989 through 1990, I was Study Director of one of the six Barry University Homeless studies financed by the Victor Posner Homeless Fund. This was a year long study to describe the number and nature of homelessness in South Florida. This was a major social research effort. The results have been presented at three national conferences.

From 1989 through 1990, I was the principal evaluator for five Zayercare projects administrated by the Dade Community Foundation. It was an evaluation and comparison of four parenting training programs for disadvantaged parents. And, one evaluation of one self-esteem building program for children in elementary schools. This work resulted in one regional conference presentation.

As well, in 1989 and 1990, I completed a summative program evaluation of the Catholic Community Service program, Family Reunification project in Miami. This was an in-depth program evaluation which identified the strengths and weaknesses of the pilot project. The evaluation covered the life of the project from the proposal to the final day of operations.

Summer of 1990, I develop an Outcome Evaluation System for Informed Families of Dade County, Miami, Florida. The package was composed of eight instruments and a manual on scoring each. One instrument was for children from first to fifth grade (pre and post). A second was for sixth through twelfth grade (pre and post). Five others were for parents, teachers, volunteers, principals and participants in workshops.

In 1991 as principal investigator, I conducted a needs assessment of AIDS Prevention Education in South Florida for the South Florida Community AIDS Partnership. The approach used key informants, snowball sampling and primarily focus groups to gather the data.

Lead the successful application writing for a surplus Naval property in Coconut Grove, FL, August, 1991 for the Miami Homeless Coalition. The proposed use was as a homeless educational center. The Property was valued at 10 million dollars.

In Nov. 1991 conducted ethnographic interviews of 50 runaway and homeless youth in the South Florida area. This is one part of a larger study of 300 interviews around the United States.

Conducting a follow up study of AIDS Prevention Education in South Florida for the South Florida Community AIDS Partnership.

Evaluated the Community Homeless Assistance Project that operated from 8-15-91 to 1-15-92, a joint venture between the City, County and Community to help the homeless in Miami, FL.

Wrote a grant for the Dade County Mental Health Association that was funded through Ryan White Funds in 1992 ($100,000).

Collaborated on and wrote the evaluation section of the DAWN Project grant that was funded by the Governor's Drug Free Community office in 1992 ($67,000).

Collaborated on and wrote the evaluation section of the SAM Project grant that was funded by the Governor's Drug Free Community office in 1992 ($67,000).

Collaborated on a grant to develop an evaluation system for the Broward Child's Service Board programs that was funded for three year in 1992 ($35,000 a year for three years).

MEDIA RECOGNITION

Although I dislike talking to journalist, as a result of my work and research among the homeless, I am perceived as an expert on the homeless in South Florida and they often seek me out. My work and comments have appeared in newspapers such as the New York Times, The Boston Globe, and The Atlanta Journal. In Florida, my work has been mentioned in the Orlando Sentinel, Sun Sentinel, and in the Tampa, Tallahassee and Jacksonville papers, as well as other Florida newspapers that write about South Florida's homeless. The Miami Herald reporters regularly mention my work and quote me when writing stories about the homeless. Local television and radio news reports also have mentioned my work and have quoted me on numerous occasions. I have been on three local T.V. talk shows, and three local radio talk shows discussing South Florida's homeless. In addition, to requests from journalist; other academics; City, County and State authorities often call on me for my data, and knowledge in their efforts to assist the homeless.

CONSULTATION ACTIVITIES

Past consultant for the Miami Coalition for the Homeless, Miami Florida. Program evaluation consultation and developed a computer network that linked homeless providers to a computer based case management system (1991-1992).

Past consultant for the Dade American Civil Liberties Union related to their suit against the City of Miami for the Cities treatment of the Homeless (1990-1992)

In 1992, a representative for the ACLU on the federal judge's oversight committee related to the City of Miami project to relocate homeless from under I-395.

Presently a consultant to Informed Families, Miami Florida. Development of an evaluation of a set of eight instruments and yearly evaluation of the data.

Presently a consultant to the Substance Abuse Ministry (SAM) program a component of the Florida Drug-Free Communities Project: Religious Leaders Response to Substance Abuse, Miami, Florida. Designing and will carry out the Program evaluation both locally and statewide.

Presently a consultant to the project Drug Awareness Wins Neighbors, (DAWN), Miami, Florida. Helped develop concept and evaluation plan. I will be conducting the evaluation in Overtown and Wynwood.

Presently a consultant to the Broward Children's Service Board (BCSB). Developing a system to evaluate agency services contracted through BCSB.

Presently consultant to NAACP on litigation issues based on statistical analysis related to discrimination in public communication actions.

COMPUTER LITERACY

I have been accessing computers in my research endeavors since 1977. Beginning with the IBM card sorter, I have used the Dec. 10, Dec. 20, the VAX 11/780, the Prime, the Harris 60, and the VAX 6310. I am also very knowledgeable with personal computers, of which I own four. I have used many different word processors on both mainframe and personal computers. I have also used modems for telecommunication since 1980.

Among the statistical packages available to researchers, I have used APL, BMD, SAS, SCSS, and I have used SPSS Release 9, SPSSX and SPSS-PC extensively. Among the more familiar computer programs, since 1979 I have used WordPerfect, word stat, and many other word processors. I am familiar with programs such as Lotus 1-2-3, Clipper, dBase IV and Reflex. I have used graphic program and print shop/disk top publishing programs. I also have experience with networking hardware, software and implementation. I also have designed, developed and wrote software for social service agencies for case management, reporting and evaluation.

Attended an intensive three-day seminar on Advanced Topics in Statistical Analysis, a seminar offered by SPSS Inc. It covered such topics as: Residual Analysis, Multicollinearity, Logistic and Probit Regression, MANOVA Time-Series, Hilogliner, Hierarchical Cluster, and Quick Cluster Analysis, in Washington, DC, October 23-25, 1990.

LAW RELATED EMPLOYMENT

Office of the Public Defender, 11th Judicial Circuit of Florida; Miami, Florida

Assistant Public Defender

1990 to Present: Senior Trial Attorney: Primary responsibility for representing individuals accused of capital crimes in three of the twenty circuit courts of Dade County. Administrative responsibilities include the supervision of the ten to fourteen lawyers assigned to these courts and the thousands of cases of individuals accused of felonies. Also responsible for helping to set and implement policy in the office.

1988 to 1990: Major Crimes Attorney: Assigned to represent a number of individuals accused of First Degree Murder.

1983 to 1988: Felony Division: Assigned to represent all individuals accused of felony crimes which were scheduled in a given week in a particular court. Approximately twenty-five to seventy cases were set every three weeks.

1982 to 1983: Juvenile Division: Handled cases involving juveniles accused of crime

Through my tenure at the Office of the Public Defender I have had well over a hundred trials. Approximately forty of the trials were bench trials in juvenile court; ~~ninety~~ were felonies ranging from car thefts and robberies to murder; and ten were First-Degree Murder cases. I also have prepared more than one thousand cases for trial which were resolved short of a trial through negotiations or motions.

In addition to my present responsibilities of representing clients charged with capital crimes, I have responsibility for training and evaluating lawyers in my division. I have lectured on both the substantive and procedural aspects of criminal law. I have lectured on trial practice and procedure, and I have sat as second chair with less experienced lawyers and guided them through trials. I have taken thousands of depositions and have trained others on how to take them.

I have reviewed police manuals and procedures for the city of Miami and have acquired a great deal of knowledge of the workings of that department.
